The professional background, of potential students for the sensor systems area may be aerospace, mechanical, or electrical engineering. Accordingly, the different levels of students' prior knowledge may require different approaches in introducing this interdisciplinary material. In order to minimize this potential difficulty, Chapters 1 and 2 ...

This special issue will focus on the broad development of Aerospace Sensor Systems. Any sensor technology that addresses issues related to this topic is acceptable. Full research papers with new results or a comprehensive review of the state-of-art of Aerospace Sensor Systems are encouraged for submission.

sensors that are proven to provide superior reliability in difficult aerospace applications. All of our new sensor designs feature all-metal construction and are hermetically sealed, which results in a durable, robust package for high reliability.
