Fullerene chemistry is a field of organic chemistry devoted to the chemical properties of fullerenes. Research in this field is driven by the need to functionalize fullerenes and tune their properties. For example, fullerene is notoriously insoluble and adding a suitable group can enhance solubility. By adding a polymerizable group, a fullerene polymer can be obtained. Functionalized ...

Fullerene chemistry - Wikipedia

Photochromism is the reversible transformation of a chemical species between two forms by the absorption of electromagnetic radiation (photoisomerization), where the two forms have different absorption spectra. Trivially, this can be described as a reversible change of colour upon exposure to light.
