On top of that, hydronic heating is an art and science unto itself, with things like  $\Delta T$ , GPM, BTU/hr, and R-value calculations involved. If you can get through all that, you're faced with boilers that start at \$2000, a complicated selection of parts that nobody except the experts really understands (you won't be getting advice at Home Depot on building one of these systems), and all sorts ...

Overview. Thermal radiation, also known as heat, is the emission of electromagnetic waves from all matter that has a temperature greater than absolute zero. It represents the conversion of thermal energy into electromagnetic energy. Thermal energy consists of the kinetic energy of random movements of atoms and molecules in matter.

Never use mechanical heating and cooling as a substitute for good design. However, for existing homes, installation of high efficiency heating and cooling technologies, with modest building improvements and behaviour change, may be cheaper options to reduce energy bills and greenhouse gas emissions than major home renovations.

"Thermal comfort mediates behavioral modification of heat loss, the most important thermoregulatory response in humans. Thermal comfort is determined by skin-surface temperature, not by tissue heat content, cutaneous heat flux, or central temperature. However, comfort produced by a local thermal stimulus depends both on the location of the stimulated skin and the rate of temperature change.
